“This was fun! I like using my devices and I liked learning how to be more cyber cool, cyber careful, cyber kind, and cyber connected.”
Susan Collins, 10 year old

“As a father and an executive in cybersecurity, I hope this book will reach children and be spread by companies to serve families and communities.”

Ed Amoroso
Former Chief Security Officer, AT&T; CEO, TAG Cyber

“A timely and important book that teaches children the critical thinking skills needed to be safe online and empowers them to make smart choices. Well done!”

Suzanne Spaulding
Former DHS Undersecretary for Cyber and Infrastructure; Senior Advisor at Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS)

“This book offers a creative, informative, and positive way to teach young and old alike cyber safety basics. It will serve as inspiration for young learners to become the next generation of cybersecurity experts.”

Keith Alexander
Former Director, NSA; Commander, US Cyber Command; General, US Army (Ret.); Founder, IronNet Cybersecurity

“Cybersecurity is one of the top priorities for companies and governments, as well as colleges and universities who are preparing students for careers in the field. This book provides a path to introduce habit-forming building blocks that will help children engage safely online and create smart digital citizens.”

John S. Pistole
Former Deputy Director, FBI; Fmr Administrator, TSA; President, Anderson University

“Cybersecurity is a journey, not a destination. Sabin’s empowering book for children takes them on a cyber journey and provides practical and fun steps to practice digital safety and reduce their risks while online. I highly recommend this book to parents, educators, and leaders.”

Patricia Titus
Board Member, Girl Scouts of the Commonwealth; Chief Privacy and Information Security Officer, Markel Corporation; Former CISO at Symantec and TSA
